

Network and local TV stations do not provide the indepth information necessary to make intelligent decisions about what is going on in the world, my country, and my hometown; and, how I can be a responsible participant in the democratic framework and spirit mandated by United States Constitution. Like bad air and bad water, the commercial media is more often than not, brain pollution of the worst sort.